DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 14-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Butterworth of record and applied as of record.

The Butterworth patent does not explicitly disclose the regeneration of the buffer continuously and external to the electrodialysis cell components and that the concentration of the anion and cation moieties are dependent upon the desired pH.

It appears that by definition the desired pH is dependent upon the anion and cation moieties, since the concentration of said moieties produce pH. Furthermore, the patent does teach the removal of the desired product and the replenishment of the starting reactants, which would read upon the regeneration of the buffer continuously and external of the cell (see col. 1, lines 34-37). In the alternative, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill to regenerate the feed buffer continuously and external to the cell, because the patent teaches that such replenishment of the feed is routinely practiced in the art to provide the feed to form the products by electrodialysis.

Claims 1-2, 4-7, 9-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Mani of record and applied as of record.

The Mani patent does not explicitly disclose the regeneration of the buffer continuously and external to the electrodialysis cell components and that the concentration of the anion and cation moieties are dependent upon the desired pH.

It appears that by definition the desired pH is dependent upon the anion and cation moieties, since the concentration of said moieties produce pH. Furthermore, the patent does teach the removal of the desired product and the replenishment of the starting reactants, which would read upon the regeneration of the buffer continuously and external of the cell (see figure 7). In the alternative, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill to regenerate the feed buffer continuously and external to the cell, because the patent teaches that such replenishment of the feed is routinely practiced in the art to provide the feed to form the products by electrodialysis.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Applicants argue that the Mani patent does not disclose the addition of a buffer, rather it uses neutralizing agents and the ion exchange to control the pH. The addition of the neutralizing agents would inherently form the buffer as claimed.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
